

Socialization Tips for Puppy Owners

Even though dogs have been domesticated for thousands of years, each new puppy that comes into our world must learn about humans. Socialization is the process during which puppies develop positive relationships with other living beings.

The most sensitive period for successful socialization is during the first three to four months of life. The experiences the pet has during this time will have a major influence on its developing personality and how well it gets along with people and other animals when it grows into adulthood.

It is very important for puppies to have frequent, positive social experiences during these early months in order to prevent asocial behaviour, fear, and biting.

Puppies that are inadequately socialized may develop irreversible fears, leading to timidity or aggression. This is not to say that socialization is complete by four months of age, only that it should begin before that time. Continued exposure to a variety of people and other animals, as the pet grows and develops, is an essential part of maintaining good social skills. It is also extremely important that your new puppy be exposed to new environments and stimuli at this time (e.g., sounds, odours, locations) to reduce the fear of 'the unfamiliar' that might otherwise develop, as the pet grows older.

Puppy Classes and Socialization

Attending puppy classes during this primary socialization period is another excellent way to ensure multiple contacts with a variety of people and other dogs.

This relatively new concept in training involves enrolling puppies early, before they pick up 'bad habits,' and at an age when they learn very quickly.

These classes can help puppies get off to a great start with training, and offer an excellent opportunity for important social experiences with other puppies and with a wide variety of people.

Puppy parties are available at the Avenue Veterinary Hospital. Please contact us for further details.

All puppies attending these parties must have all vaccinations and must be seen by a vet prior to enrolment.

Socialization biscuits

It is important for every puppy to meet as many new people as possible, in a wide variety of situations. It may be beneficial to ask each person who meets the puppy to give the puppy a biscuit. This will teach the puppy to look forward to meeting people and discourage hand shyness, since the puppy will learn to associate new friends and an outstretched hand with something positive. You should make certain that the pet has the opportunity to meet and receive biscuits from a wide variety of people of all ages, appearances, and both sexes during the early formative months.

Every effort must be made to see that the young pup has plenty of opportunities to learn about children. Kids can seem like a completely different species to dogs since they walk, act, and talk much differently than adults. Puppies that grow up without meeting children when they are young may never feel comfortable around them when they become adults as they don't know what they are.

And last, but not least, be careful to avoid physical punishment and any interactions with people that might make the puppy anxious. Harshly punishing a young pet will damage its bond with you and weaken its trust in people. Techniques such as swatting the pup, shaking it by the scruff, roughly forcing it onto its back, thumping it on the nose, and rubbing its face in a mess should never be used. Pets that are raised using these methods may grow up to fear the human hand, and are likely candidates to become fear biters. In general, any interactions with people that might make a puppy anxious should particularly be avoided during the early months of its life.

Avenue Veterinary Hospital
Avenue Road, Dundalk, Co. Louth

David A. MacGuinness M.V.B., M.R.C.V.S.
John B. MacGuinness M.V.B., M.R.C.V.S.

Small Animals: +353 (0)42 933 9648
Large Animals: +353 (0)42 939 6577
Emergency: +353 (0)87 952 2222
Email: admin@avenuevets.ie
Website: www.avenuevets.ie